PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Dear Pirate Community,

I hope that this newsletter finds you and your family healthy and safe since the last hurricane. The experiences that we have all shared for the past two months have been difficult to overcome and many are still dealing with hardships that still need to be faced. As the school year unfolds, I am hopeful that each day continues to get better for you and your family and that a sense of normalcy returns to your daily living.

Obviously, the disruption to our school year has been significant. Displaced classrooms, cancelled activities, student/family needs, and gaps in learning are just a few issues that we continue to work through each day. It has been amazing to me to watch this school community pull together to overcome these obstacles. Although far from perfect, we are slowly getting back to the high school experience for our staff and students that make our school so incredible. Teaching and learning in the classroom, being able to play a home football game, attending a pep rally, senior trick or treating, going to the Homecoming dance, and having opportunities to once again support one another are just a few things that have returned to our school community since the storm(s). Each day is getting better at our school!

A reminder to all of our students that it is imperative to keep working hard in the classroom. Students that have fallen behind or need some extra support can get assistance after school through our Power Hour tutoring program. Power Hour occurs every Tuesday and Thursday from 2:30 pm until 4:30 pm in room C215. There are dedicated certified teachers available to assist all students in need. I am also asking that students, if they have not already, make the important choice to "get involved and stay involved" at school. There are many athletic and extra-curricular activities for our students to choose from and I encourage everyone to participate.

It is awesome being back at school and I am looking forward to sharing all of the experiences with our staff and students for the remainder of the school year.

Sincerely,
Louis M Long
Principal

SHARK MUN CONFERENCE

The Model UN team competed at Gulf Coast High School's SharkMUN conference this September. Overall the team took home the FIRST PLACE Best Delegation award, with individual placements as follows:

- Grant Warden – 1st Place
- Avery Gauthier – 1st Place
- Kaylee Decker - 2nd Place
- Cole Beiner - 2nd Place
- Dita Carlsen - 2nd place
- Gabe DeGuzman - 4th place
- Emelia Valentz - 4th Place

The team discussed various worldly and fictitious issues, from the Disarmament and Security of Nuclear Weapons to the Conflict between the Koopa and Mushroom Kingdoms in the world of Nintendo. Overall, the students spent the weekend honing their debate and persuasion skills while enjoying the competition with rival schools from all over the region.

HELPING YOUR TEEN ENJOY READING (DFCC)

When my daughters were little, they loved to read. We would take trips to the library every Saturday and they would each bring home a big pile of books. I remember the two of them in the back of the van on the way home showing each other the books they had picked with such excitement. However, as they have gotten older, I have noticed that love for books dwindle, and my 16-year-old has even told me she "hates reading". Gasp!

So, I began wondering if it was just my kids or if other parents had seen the same in their children. Sadly, I found that this is more common than you would think. I began researching ways to help my kids fall back in love with reading again, and here's what I found:

1. It is important to help your teen find books on their reading level. At some point your child may have gotten the idea that they aren't a good reader, or they may have actual difficulties with reading. Teens can often be a closed book themselves and determining their level of reading skills can be difficult, so starting with something that is easy but interesting can be a great way to start out.
2. Speaking of interesting.... help your teen look for books that are a topic and format of interest for them. Not all reading needs to be thick novels. Your child might get into comic books or magazines or a downloadable book vs a physical book and that is ok. If your child is into becoming the next YouTube star, why not look for books on how to do that, or maybe on some YouTubers who have become successful. Remember that the goal is to peak interest in reading again.
3. As much as we may want to pick out books that we think our teens might be interested in, it is important to let your teen pick their own books out. Head to your local library and let them browse in sections of their interest.
4. Don't criticize. You may think what your child is reading is boring or too young for them etc. However, criticizing what your teen chooses to read can have a negative effect on their desire to read at all. Instead, consider encouraging them for the act of choosing to read.
5. Model reading in front of your child. If your child sees you reading frequently, they are more likely to read themselves. Even just having books available in your home can increase the chance that your teen will be a reader.
6. Spark a conversation about what your teen is reading. Take some time to talk to your teen about what they are reading. Sometimes this helps to create continued interest and it's a wonderful way to bond as well.

Reading has many benefits for teens. Reading can help them gain knowledge, improve writing and concentration skills, and can even boost self-esteem and happiness. Reading together or even reading the same book and discussing it together, can also strengthen family bonds.
