Message From The Principal

Greetings Chief Families!

The 2023-24 is underway and off to a great start! Our students have settled back into the routine of schooling and it's great having them back in Chief Country.

Our first English Language Arts progress monitoring check will begin next week. All 9th and 10th grade students will participate. There are three we have to administer this year. More information will be shared in my weekly updates.

This year our academic programs are continuously growing with more students enrolled in rigorous courses such as AP and AICE. As a school, we will incorporate AVID strategies which will assist students to be more college and career ready. The Freshman Academy will focus on a team approach which allows for an easier transition for our 9th grade students. Career academies continue to flourish. All of our academies give students an opportunity to explore real world experiences that will prepare them for post-secondary opportunities. All students in an academy program are expected to take and pass an industry certification exam at the end of the school year.

Mark your calendar! Our Open House will be held on Tuesday, September 6th at 6:00 p.m. All parents/guardians are invited to attend.

Our fall athletic programs are in full swing. Please come out and support our student athletes. Contact our Athletic Director Jacquez.banks@palmbeachschools.org if you have any specific questions.

Please read through our newsletter carefully as we have provided a lot of information.

Finally, we need more parents/guardians to join our School Advisory Committee (SAC). This committee is open to anyone who has a student attending Santaluces Community High School. We really need your support as we implement school-wide programs and initiatives as well as assistance

5 Tips for a Successful Start to the School Year

Children's Home Society of Florida

With the start of the school year, we want parents and students to feel prepared and ready to start off on the right foot. From getting a nutritious breakfast to managing back-to-school anxiety, we've got a few quick tips to help kick off the new school year on a positive note.

5 Back-to-School Tips

- Allow time for and find a good space for homework. It's important that children have a quiet and consistent work space (a specific spot at the kitchen table or a little nook in a bedroom). In addition, allowing for plenty of time to study, complete homework or assignments and prepare for the next day can help them feel ready and successful each day.
- Be prepared for the day and eat breakfast. Whether children are provided with a meal at school or home, it's key that they start the day with a healthy and filling breakfast. When children eat a good breakfast, it helps them to stay concentrated and focused throughout the morning and into the rest of the day.
- Ensure you are getting enough sleep. If kids don't get enough sleep each night throughout the week, it can be challenging to stay focused on tasks during the day or even throughout class time. Depending on the child's age the optimal amount to sleep can range from eight to 12 hours of sleep a night.
- Keep an eye out for Back-to-school anxiety: Returning to school after extended time away can be a source of stress and worry for kids and parents. For many children – especially those with existing mental health and behavioral challenges – adult support and understanding can help.
- Stay safe on the way to and from school: Whether you're riding the bus or bike, or going by car or by foot, it's important to keep safety top of mind and be aware of your surroundings. Use safety equipment like seatbelts in the car and on the bus and a helmet while biking. Remember to walk on the sidewalk and stay seated while on the bus.

4 Ways to Build Effective Partnerships with Your Child's Teacher

As parents, we are essential partners in our child's education, from the time they first enter school through their academic career.

We know our children better than anyone else, and we can provide their teachers with important information, perspective, and insight. When you share information about your child's daily life — their language and culture, their strengths and weaknesses — you help their teachers get to know them as individuals. This information empowers your child's teachers to adapt lessons to meet their needs.

When you stay connected with your child's teachers, it builds a relationship where you, your child, and their teachers benefit. Here are four ways you can partner with your child's teachers to support your child's and their teachers' success:

1. Plan your communication- Take advantage of opportunities to meet your child's teacher, such as a school Open House. Encourage teachers to reach out to you and contact them whenever you have questions, concerns, or even exciting news.
2. Set goals with your child- Ask teachers about learning goals for the school year, how your child is doing relative to those goals, and how you can support your child in achieving these goals.
3. Always stay informed- Look in your child's backpack every day, and frequently view the parent portal for assignments, grades, and important information from teachers and school administrators.
4. Actively participate- It can be something simple like reading books to the class or helping with special events or projects. This not only supports teachers; it also gives you a deeper understanding of what goes on in your child's school.

When you partner with your child's teachers in their learning, you empower teachers to give their best to your child to help them grow and thrive. Remember, every day is an opportunity to appreciate and support teachers!
